Overview

Thomas A. Osorio started drawing as an artist in 2003 while living in Cincinnati, Ohio, beginning his professional path into the art world in 2010 with his acceptance at the Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York. It was at this institution that Osorio began developing fine art skills in drawing, painting, sculpture, lithography, copperplate etching, color theory, and digital art. Over the next four years, he gained academic critique of art in the studio, classroom setting, writing concisely about the vision of his artwork, and using the critical thinking skills to define what being an artist in the modern world within the contemporary art market. Osorio experienced a variety of areas related to the art world during his time at Pratt Institute. These experiences include working as a studio assistant for two well-known artists (Mary Mattingly & Greg Lindquist) and working at Lennon Weinberg fine art gallery in Chelsea, which is known as the largest art district of New York City. Upon graduating, Osorio made his way into teaching and working on public urban art projects in his hometown of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Osorio continued his education at the Art Institute of Chicago in 2016. While at SAIC he developed a more robust skill set and a more in-depth understanding of painting, digital media, and contemporary art. He also assisted professors in the classroom as an art teaching assistant. Osorio graduated from the Art Institute of Chicago in 2018. Following his graduation, he began his next chapter with courses from multiple appraiser training organizations. Today, Osorio demonstrates a variety of skills with Art of Estates appraisal firm researching essential data points on the different types of personal property encountered during the inventory, research, and evaluation processes on expansive collections for IRS Estate Tax and Insurance Coverage appraisal services.
